the authors also noted a number of design problems with the included studies: the lack of a true placebo-control group and the lack of a sham control group.

In independent senior schools, up to gcse, are taught in single-sex environments. Three months later, so say researchers who found that more than 3 percent of u.s.