it is essential to frequently replace devices that can be disconnected or reconnected from the source of insulin