although hemochromatosis can have other causes, in the united states the disease is usually caused by a genetic disorder